

HAPPY LUNAR NEW YEAR

Begin a new family tradition by celebrating Lunar New Year as a host parent to a Chinese son or daughter.

Rooted in centuries of custom and tradition, Lunar New Year is one of the most important holidays in many Asian countries.

Often during this celebration, red envelopes containing small gifts will be exchanged. The color of the envelope plays an important role, as red is seen as a symbol of happiness and good fortune, and is believed to ward against evil spirits.

Welcome a new member into your family; one who might be able to teach you more about this fascinating and ancient tradition.

Apply today to host a student during the upcoming school year at yfuusa.org/apply.

The Hellands surprise their exchange daughter, Jiting, with a red envelope containing a collection of all the US state quarters after learning the importance of Lunar New Year in Jiting's home culture.
